Olivier Lamoureux

Olivier Lamoureux is an associate in Gowling WLG's Montréal office and a member of the firm's Employment, Labour and Equalities Group. In this capacity, he provides strategic advice on issues affecting all aspects of labour and employment law, both in unionized and non-unionized settings.

Olivier represents clients before all civil and administrative courts on a range of matters, including those related to labour relations, termination of employment of contracts for lower and upper-level employees, occupational health and safety, employment aspects of commercial transactions, and harassment in the workplace.

Olivier also has specific expertise in the drafting, interpretation and application of non-competition and non-solicitation clauses.

Prior to joining Gowling WLG, Olivier worked in national and international firms in Montreal and was legal counsel for a leading Canadian agri-food company.

He practises law in French and English.
